A ROSE BY ANY OTHER NAME IS STILL A ROSE . . .

Ten years ago we published an issue listing individuals in the field of entertainment and politics who have changed their names. Over the years we have had thousands of requests for this issue from every corner of the earth. Consequently, we republish this partial list of those who have changed their names, most of whom are identified with the liberal movement.

Many people are curious as to why such a large number of self-styled Jews change their names. This is not true of any other group, for instance, Polish — many have long names, difficult to pronounce or spell, but they do not change their names.

When the Jews were plotting from the "inside" of Germany to deliver that country to the communist Soviet Union, the changing of names became a serious problem. To meet this situation, provisions were adopted so that Jews could be identified.

Obviously, changing Bromberger to Bromberg or Moroz to Morros is not an attempt to hide Jewishness. Also, a Lauren Bacall can claim quite reasonably that Betty Bernstein is not a fit name for a "glamorous" motion picture star. But this is not the point. The following list of well-known persons who are all Jews and who did change their names is appended so as to inform the reader of their Jewishness, particularly when the name deliberately obscures the person's origin for no apparent reason. It is a well-known fact Jews dominate the entertainment industry.

Since no law presently protects us from the fraudulent and deceptive concealment of these people's Jewish racial origin, achieved by name changing, we must ferret out and publicize such changes.

CHANGING A NAME STYLISH IN ISRAEL

According to the International Press, it is getting harder and harder to find a Jewish name in Israel. The Finkelsteins, the Greenbergs and the Goldbergs are a vanishing breed.

Former Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, for example, was born David Green. President Yitzhak Ben Zvi used to be Yitzhak Shimshilevitch. These are only two of tens of thousands of Israelis who have changed their names. Foreign Minister Golda Myerson has become Golda Meir; Moshe Shertok has become Moshe Sharett. In the foreign ministry it is almost mandatory to change one's name before receiving an appointment overseas.

The Israeli Government has made changing names easy. All one has to do is to fill out an application and file with the Minister of the Interior and pay a nominal fee (15 cents in 1957). If the applicant was in the Army, the fee was eliminated. Two weeks later a certificate verifying the new name was issued and published in the official gazette.

When Israel became a state in 1948, the urge to adopt new names became overwhelming. In 1949 more than 6,900 persons changed their names. By the beginning of 1957, 64,000 had gone through the process.

"People and things change. Principles and Facts—Never. The penalty good men pay for indifference to public affairs is to be ruled by evil men." . . . Plato.

Edward G. Robinson (Emanuel Goldenberg), Danny Kaye (David D. Kaminsky), and Dore Schary, President of the Anti-Defamation League and notorious Red fronter, photographed at a Red front meeting. The California Un-American Activities Committee in its 1947 report found their organization, the Hollywood Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions, to be a Communist front. You make possible their activities when you patronize theatres or TV programs listing them, or purchase products from companies sponsoring them.
